This time, it's Compound No. 85. In some of the more troublesome compounds, American troops and Communist war prisoners have dug trenches on opposite sides of the barbed-wire fences, apparently in anticipation of trouble. ## 31 Prisoners Killed, 139 Wounded--

US Paratroopers Crack PW Riot, Find Plot to Seize Kojé Island

KOJÉ ISLAND, Korea (AP)—Tough U.S. paratroopers today cracked the Communist prisoner of war rebellion in a 2½-hour battle that made a shambles of notorious compound 76 and uncovered a prisoner plot to seize the island.

Thirty-one prisoners were killed and 139 wounded in the bloody fighting. Autopsies showed that 12 prisoners were killed by their fellow Reds with crude spears.

One American was killed and 14 were wounded. The slain American had been speared to death and not killed by a concussion grenade as first reported. Only one American was seriously wounded.

The fight broke out when the OOW's disobeyed orders to move peacefully into new, smaller enclosures of about 500 each.

U.S. Army Intelligence officers found a master plan in 76 to liberate all 80,000 Communist prisoners on Kojé. It called for the Reds to seize the island and its U.N. garrison and turn its weapons against any force from the mainland. Further details were withheld.

Not a shot was fired in the barbed wire enclaved battlefield. The 750 Americans of the "Angels From Hell" combat team used concussion grenades, bayonets, tear gas and fists to subdue the rebellious 6,400 North Koreans. The Reds were armed with spears, knives, rocks and firearms.

POWS to New Enclosures

Surrendering prisoners were moved off to the new enclosures. Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, the Kojé commander, had given the Reds a chance to move to the new quarters peacefully.

Die-hard Communist leaders chose to fight.

Boatner met the resistance with force in his campaign to gain uncontested control over the prison pens.

The wild, swirling battle was witnessed by prisoners of two other unruly compounds—78 and 77.

Shortly after the fight ended Boatner told prisoners in 78 to get ready to be moved—or else. The prisoners obeyed meekly.

And leaders in Compound 77 sent word that they would be ready to move on Boatner's command.

They will be moved tomorrow.

Boatner was jubilant over the way the paratroopers from the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team quelled the Reds. He said:

Troop Discipline "Superb"

"The discipline of the troops was superb. I have an official report that not one shot was fired in Compound 76. We captured the exact plan of resistance."

He referred to the map and papers found inside 76.

Boatner personally had ordered North Korean Col. Lee Hak Woo, a Compound 76 leader, to assemble the POWs for moving. Lee refused.

At 5:45 a.m. loudspeakers blared to the compound:

"In 15 minutes you will be moved into newly constructed compounds x x x. If you move quietly you will not be hurt. If you resist you do so at your own peril."

The Communists ducked into freshly dug trenches and waited.

Fifteen minutes later the paratroopers attacked. They stormed through the barbed wire fences from several directions.

Capture Reds' Col. Lee

Twenty minutes after the fighting started Red Colonel Lee was captured.

Rugged paratroopers grabbed him by the seat of the pants and walked him "frog legged"—on hands and knees—out of the compound. Tears streamed down his face. He was clamped in solitary confinement.

Tents flamed and wooden buildings were torn from their foundations when concussion grenades which explode without scattering death-dealing fragments—set off fires and explosions in POW cache of gasoline.

Paratroopers bounded into the prisoners' trenches. Bayonets plunged into Reds who resisted. Some of the wounded fought as long as they could move.

Thirty minutes after the fight started the field was strewn with dead.

Slain by Fellow Inmates

Many of the dead prisoners were slain by fellow inmates after trying to surrender. In the trenches that surrounded all buildings

Urge OK German Pact Now

Acheson Requests Senate Guarantee To Help Defend Western Germany

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson today urged the Senate to give quick approval to the German peace contract plus a guarantee to help defend Western Germany in the event of Communist aggression.

The secretary told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

"These agreements greatly advance all that we have been trying to do since the end of the war to build a strength and unity among the free nations."

As the administration's lead-off witness in hearings on the pacts, Acheson stressed the "great importance of early ratification." He said, too, he was confident other Western European governments would follow suit if this were done.

Are Two Pacts for Approval

It has been speculated widely that France — and possibly other North Atlantic Treaty nations — would be cool to putting West Germany, a bitter enemy eight years ago, in a military alliance to which France was a party.

The two documents which require Senate approval are a peace contract between the United States, Britain, France and West Germany, and an amendment to the North Atlantic Treaty granting West Germany the guarantees of the alliance.

Acheson told the Senate the peace contract will grant the German republic "the greatest autonomy that is possible under present international conditions."

The contract was "freely negotiated" by the Germans, he said, and was not imposed by the U. S., Britain and France as conquerors.

Two weeks ago, Acheson witnessed the signing of a third peace in Europe, an agreement setting up a European army composed of troops from West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

U.S. Did Not Sign Third Pact

The U. S. was not a signatory to the pact and Senate confirmation was not required, but Acheson went out of his way in his testimony today to stress the importance of that agreement.

And in a move to re-assure the French government that the U. S. would not sit idly by in the event West Germany at some future date decides to pull out of the 6-nation army, Acheson told the committee:

"There must be no misunderstanding in any quarter about how we would regard any act which would affect the integrity or unity of the European Defense Community."

Such a move would affect the "interests and security" of the U. S., Acheson said, adding that this nation, Britain and France would immediately begin consultations to decide what to do.

"The parties would then consider, subject to the constitutional requirements of each country, how best to concert their efforts in order to all the common action necessary to the threat of danger," the secretary said.

An appeal for quick Senate confirmation was expected also from John J. McCloy, U. S. high commissioner in West Germany.

Truman Asks Congress Grant Power to Seize, Run Steel

Gen. M'Arthur Named Keynoter

CHICAGO (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today was named keynoter for the Republican national convention opening here July 7.

The choice of MacArthur was made on a voice vote in a closed meeting of the convention's 64-member arrangements committee.

William Mylander, Republican publicity director, told reporters he understood MacArthur had agreed to accept. The committee decided to split the keynoter post away from that of temporary chairman.

Walter S. Hallanan of West Virginia, a staunch supporter of Sen. Robert Taft was chosen temporary chairman of the convention.

Mylander said the voice vote for Hallanan was unanimous. The West Virginian is a veteran member of the committee, having served on it since 1928.

Hallanan was put in nomination by Jacob France of Maryland. The nomination was seconded by Cyrus L. Phillips of Wisconsin.

The choice of MacArthur was a victory for supporters of Taft of Ohio, leading candidate for the GOP presidential nomination. Although the designation of MacArthur had been protested by backers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Taft's chief rival, Mylander said there were only scattered "no's," when the voice vote was taken.

Seconding speeches for MacArthur included one by Mrs. A. C. Remmel of Arkansas.

Rep. Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, House minority leader, who has praised MacArthur as a possible GOP presidential nominee, was named unanimously as permanent chairman of the convention.

Before Joint Session He Presents Plan

Says It's Far Better Than Taft-Hartley Law He Could Use

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today voted down two industry seizure plans with-in hours after President Truman had asked Congress for power to seize and operate the struck steel mills.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman asked Congress today for power to seize and operate the struck steel industry.

Before a hastily assembled joint session of the Senate and House, Truman said the choice lay between federal seizure and use of the Taft-Hartley Act. A Taft-Hartley injunction against the strike of 650,000 United Steel workers, he said, "is by far the worst of the two approaches."

Standing on the speaker's dias in the House chamber, Truman told the senators and representatives the Supreme Court had ruled against presidential seizure of the steel mills, but had said Congress could vote to take private property. He said:

"Issue Up to Congress"

"The issue is squarely up to Congress."

Truman said a seizure law should:

1. Permit the government to change the wages and working conditions of the steel workers. The government had been prepared to raise steel wages under the presidential seizure but was blocked by a court injunction.

2. Provide for a method of determining just compensation for the mill owners. Truman recommended special boards within the framework of the economic stabilization program. A factor in the strike was the failure of the steel industry to get government assurances of price increases the industry deemed necessary to pay higher wages.

Can Assure Steel Production

"In this way," the President said of the 2-side approach, "the legislation can assure continued steel production and fair treatment for both parties during government operation."

Truman condemned use of the Taft-Hartley Act's injunctive powers as "unwise, unfair and quite possibly ineffective." He said the union had voluntarily postponed strike action for 90 days as compared with the Taft-Hartley 80-day cooling-off period. Truman continued:

"Its (Taft-Hartley) effect would be to require the workers to continue working for another long period without change in their wages and working conditions."

T-H Would Be Unfair

"The Wage Stabilization Board, the government agency charged with responsibility in these matters, has found — and the companies have admitted — that the workers are entitled to improvements in wages and working conditions."

"The result of using a Taft-Hartley type injunction in this dispute would be to take sides with the companies against the workers."

If Congress should go against his judgment on Taft-Hartley, Truman urged that it vote powers for an immediate injunction, without waiting for the fact-finding report by a special board as now required by that statute.

Gives Three Objectives

Truman said Congress should act with three objectives in mind:

1. "To secure essential steel production."

2. "To assure fair treatment to both parties."

3. "To encourage the parties to settle their differences through collective bargaining."

Truman seized the mills last April, acting under what he termed the inherent powers of his office. But the steel industry fought back in the courts and the seizure was upset by a historic Supreme Court ruling on Monday last week that Truman lacked such inherent power.

Immediately after the court decision, the steel workers walked out.

Pleading now for Congress to give him this power, Truman told the legislators in solemn words that full scale production of steel is absolutely necessary to the western rearmament program. He added:

"The issue of peace or war hangs in the balance and steel is a vital element in the outcome."

When the steel peace talks collapsed last night both the industry and the union said: "We have given assurance to our government that we will co-operate in assuring production of military requirements essential to our forces engaged in combatting Communist aggressors."

As a follow-up to this the White House today called in top defense and production officials (12:35 p.m. CST) to discuss the arrangements for resuming enough steel production to meet "critical defense requirements."

John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, announced last night that five days of intensive bargaining had failed to produce a settlement. It was strongly indicated the parties had floundered finally on the controversial union shop demand, which would require all steelworkers to be union members.

British Take Away Barrier At Red Radio

End 7-Day Siege Which Won Points From the Soviets

BERLIN (AP)—British troops removed their barbed wire barricades from Russia's Radio Berlin headquarters early today, ending a seven-day siege which won several concessions from the Soviets.

The British said they lifted the blockade on the station inside their zone because it had served its purpose. Under its pressure, the Russians loosened their squeeze on West Berlin to the extent of yielding several border areas they had seized.

Allied officials took the view that the siege, if continued too long, might have boomeranged. They felt the Allied-occupied part of this Communist-surrounded city is too vulnerable to invite heavy reprisals for slight gains.

"We must show moderation as well as firmness so as not to bring down further difficulties on Berlin's head," one official commented.

The Communists still held West Berlin in a potential strangle grip that could be turned any time into a new blockade. Zonal borders between East and West Germany, and even street boundaries between East and West Berlin, have been turned into fortified frontiers.

The Reds have cut all but four of Berlin's highway lines to the West. Allied military patrols still were barred from the single Allied road passageway through the Russian zone.

Some small Berlin areas which the Russians seized or cut off from West Berlin before the siege remained in Soviet control.

These were the specific concessions won from the Russians:

1. They yielded entirely on Britain's No. 1 demand by withdrawing from the little British sector settlement of Eiskeller, which they had sealed off a week ago.

2. They withdrew their sentries from the shore of Lake Griebnitz, an American sector.

3. They permitted the tiny suburb of Steinstuecken, in the American sector, to resume contact with West Berlin via a road through the Soviet zone.

4. They also dropped their demand for a small piece of the Frohnau Cemetery which extends from the French sector into the Russian zone.

After British Tommies rolled away the barricading wire shortly before 2 a.m. today some 40 Russians and German Communists trapped inside the building for the week refused to come out. By telephone they said they would not emerge until relieved by a fresh staff.

During the siege they had lived in apparent comfort on stockpiled food and continued their insulting broadcasts against the West.

Stromboli Volcano Erupts Last Night

STROMBOLI, Italy (AP)—Stromboli Volcano erupted again last night, sending up streams of molten lava down its barren sides.

The volcano, on this island 50 miles north of Sicily, is one of the few in Europe that is frequently active. It erupted last Saturday, covering the village of Giunata at its base with a thick layer of ashes.

UN Finds No Signs Of Red Army Buildup

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—The top United Nations air commander in Korea said today his air spotter have found no sign of a buildup for a Communist offensive in Korea but "if we did we'd go after it."

Maj. Gen. Glen Barcus, new commander of the U. S. Fifth Air Force, told a news conference the Air Force knows the Reds have "a lot" of men in North Korea.

The Weather

House Committee Okays $2,758 Million For Arms Construction

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee today unanimously approved a $2,758,318,000 authorization for military construction in the year beginning July 1.

The total is about 269 million dollars less than President Truman asked Congress to appropriate in a message 10 days ago.

The biggest cut was 250 million in funds earmarked as the American share of European armaments to be used by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The committee voted unanimously to eliminate this item from the bill on the grounds that it belonged in foreign aid authorization. The committee did not express an opinion on the necessity for these funds, which may be requested later in separate legislation.

Other presidential reorganization plans to knock out Senate confirmation of 94 United States marshals and about 55 customs collectors and other customs officials. The votes on these were 7-2 and 6-4 respectively.

Liner United States Sets Speed Records

ABOARD THE SS UNITED STATES AT SEA (AP)—The graceful superliner United States today slid through the Atlantic at speeds "considerably higher" than ever attained by any other large vessel.

Her four massive propellers pushed the 53,000-ton black and white beauty through the water at something near 40 miles an hour.

An official announcement by a J. S. Maritime Administration officer put the speed attained during last night's performance trials at "considerably" in excess of 34 knots. This means that the 900-foot queen of the U. S. Merchant Marine traveled at least 37.5 miles an hour.

How much faster than that the United States actually went during the 8-hour run was not disclosed for security reasons.

The ship is designed for rapid conversion to a troop transport in the event of war.

McGranery Asks for Reports On Non-Prosecuted Criminals

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney General James P. McGranery told the nation's U. S. District Attorneys today to give him an immediate report on the criminal cases where no prosecution has been undertaken.

It was the first major step by McGranery since he was sworn in as head of the Justice Department May 27.

McGranery, a former U. S. District Judge in Philadelphia, was named to replace J. Howard McGrath, who was let out of the cabinet on April 5, the same day he fired Newbold Morris as his corruption hunter.

McGranery issued his instructions to some 94 federal prosecutors assembled here to get acquainted with their new boss.

"Some matters pending as long as six months may be too long," McGranery told the district attorneys. "If no prosecution has been started I want to know your reasons."

McGranery, who has said he will head his own drive against whatever wrongdoing he finds in the government, said that among other things, he wants the prosecutors to give him detailed information on any private law practice held by them or their chief assistants.

Such practices are not forbidden by law provided the federal prosecutor gives first attention to his official duties and takes no part as a private attorney in cases involving the U. S. government.

The annual reunion of the class of 1894 will be held at a 6:30 dinner tonight at Bothwell Hotel.

Members of the class who will be present are James Quinn, W. O. Stanley, Harvey D. Dow, Miss Mayme Shipley, Mrs. Del Moore and Irvin Raut.

Guests at the dinner will be Mrs. W. O. Stanley, Mrs. Irvin Raut and Mrs. J. C. Connor.

Members of the class who are still living are Miss Julia Eiseaman of Sedalia, but who is out of the city at this time, Glenn H. Woods, Oakland, Calif., and George Enick of Cabool, Mo.

The reunion is usually held on May 24, but it was not possible to have it on that date this year and it was postponed until tonight.

Chester Brown Elected Commercial Secretaries Vice President In Mo.

Chester A. Brown, executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, was elected first vice president of the Missouri Commercial Executives, at the annual convention of that organization held June 7, 8 and 9 at Hannibal.

Carl Wennersten of Independence was elected president and other officers are Reuben Tapperson of the Associated Industries, St. Louis, second vice president; Charles Joliff, West Plains, secretary-treasurer.

A number of prominent men were speakers at the three-day convention.

The convention for next year will be held in Camdenet the early part of June.

Compound 76 Leaders' Red Paraphernalia Lies In Dust

KOJÉ ISLAND, Korea (AP)—Red-starred caps, Communist arm-bands, epaulettes — paraphernalia of compound 76 leaders — lay trampled in the dust of the smoking prison pen tonight.

They were all that remained of the authority the Communists once used to rule over the barbed wire enclosure's 6,400 prisoners of war.

For 2½ hours this morning the Red-led prisoners battled American paratroopers to prevent their removal to compounds holding not more than 500 men each. They lost.

All prisoners were transferred. Medical teams then moved into the ruined area and carried out the dead and wounded.

Thirty-one prisoners were killed and 139 wounded. One American was killed and 14 wounded in subduing the Reds.

The smell of smoke and tear gas and death was like a choking blanket.

Some bones smoldered in the ashes of burned compound buildings.

Among the wounded were some who feigned death until the fighting was over.

Surrendering during the heat of battle was dangerous.

One officer said he saw Reds kill five fellow prisoners when they tried to give up. Another officer said he saw three killed in this fashion.

Hours after the fighting had stopped, flames poured from some of the mud and stone buildings. Occasionally burned wooden supports gave way and metal roofs crashed down.

Some tents were untouched by flames. Inside soldiers found buckets of warm barley and rice. Troops found some buildings connected by trenches and tunnels.

One underground channel — complete with ventilators — led to a neighboring stockade.

A prisoner plan for seizing control of the island was uncovered.

Death in the Sierras

By Doris Hudson Moss

Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.—Copyright by Western Family

THE STORY: Rosemary Curtis, a newspaper woman, goes into the Sierras for a vacation. As she stops for gasoline enroute, someone fires a rifle bullet into her car and she learns that another woman has been murdered in the mountains. Someone also tries to stop her by cutting down a tree so that it fell across the highway.

MRS. JAMES, wife of the proprietor of Gold Lodge, introduced me to the guests near the fire as a late sandwich and drank coffee from a tray. She herself was pleasant, business-like, tall and slender. But her face carried an expression of harassed weariness.

Her husband was a ruddy, stout man, smiling, but he had a sly, shifty glance. He wheezed slightly when he breathed.

The cook was a middle-aged, very stout colored woman named Rhumba Jones. She was shrewd, superstitious and kind.

Among the guests was a Mrs. Ordell, a pretty little woman, somewhat faded. I liked her on sight. I did not meet her husband until the morning after I arrived. But Mrs. Ordell told me he taught geology at the University.

Dr. David Roberts was a surgeon from San Francisco, tall, dark, good-looking, and pleasant.

Miss Hansen, a nurse from Fresno, was a Scandinavian girl, large, blonde, broad of mouth, wholesome.

Then there were three boys from the University, working at camp for the summer.

Jeff Edwards was lean, wiry, homely, with a disarming smile.

Dick Bannister was of football build, tall, heavy-shouldered, good looking.

Bob Martin was quiet, small and rather dill. He seemed peevish and irritable and entered the lodge just before I retired.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Alberts and their two small sons I somehow disliked. She was a bold-mannered woman who talked loudly and seemed undisturbed by her two unruly sons.

Mr. Alberts was gifted unpleasantly with an opinion upon every subject and an annoying habit of finding laughable vulgarity in the most harmless remark.

The lads, themselves, were inanelly called Bigga and Little. Susie detested them immediately and she usually adores children.

Pete Dupres wrangled the horses. He lived in a room in the barn loft and came up to the lodge for his meals and to the fire. He was wiry, able, quiet, and he had a wretched habit of sitting quietly staring past us all, with his head cocked to one side, as though he were listening. I learned that he had once been a shepherd and the loneliness had touched his mind somewhat.

CUSTOMARILY, I was told, the electric lights were turned off at 10.30, so after I finished my supper I asked to be shown to my tent. Leading Susie, I followed Mrs. James, who led the way along a wooded path with an electric torch.

Where the brush and trees were especially thick, Mrs. James turned her light upon a small stream which we stepped across.

"Wilnot, what are you doing here?" I saw a dark form rise from a nearby log. Mrs. James was apparently annoyed but not frightened.

"No harm, Ma, no harm," replied a hisping, soft voice that somehow affected me unpleasantly. "I was just waiting for that dead Indian to get here. We are going out to do some scalping."

It was a slice of fresh raw meat . . . a white powder filled the center.

"Wilnot, go back to your tent or I shall call your father. Now, mind me, go at once to your tent and stay there!" She turned her light upon him and I saw the pitiful and subnormal face of a lad of perhaps 18 years. He was tall and well built but his eyes shone with the eager unformed expression of a little boy.

OBEEDIENLY, he turned and walked off into the darkness. "Your son?" I asked.

"Yes," replied Mrs. James with a sigh. "Poor boy, he realizes his deficiency yet is very sweet-tempered. He is entirely childlike and harmless and says very little, ordinarily, but today, as it happened, the men were digging, to place some new water pipes, and found an Indian grave. Dick Bannister, the tallest college boy, said the old Indian was probably caught on a scalping party. Poor Wilnot has thought of that all day. I am sorry if he frightened you."

"Oh, not at all," I lied politely. "I am sorry you have such a worry. Surely in time your son may improve."

"I am afraid not," Mrs. James answered hopelessly. "Now, here is your tent." She entered and turned on the electric light.

Accommodations were simple but comfortable. The tent was floored, the bed was painted white, there was a rug, a bureau, chairs, and pegs for my clothes completed the simple furnishings.

Mrs. James very kindly tucked a hot rock into the foot of my bed and as I unpacked she lingered to talk. She told of the guests, the many delightful lakes one could find nearby, of the horses available for riding, of the trout and the bass fishing.

Laughingly I promised Mrs. James some fish and then, because I was not trembling any more, I told her of the old man at Horse-shoe Springs, how he peeked from the door, of his whispered story of a murdered woman, of his warning to drive fast and stop for nothing, of the rifle shot and bullet hitting my rear fender. I told her of the fallen tree and of my impression of a woman standing nearby.

She stared at me. "I was afraid of it!" she whispered. With that she raised the tent flap and vanished into the night.

When I awoke there were shadows of leaves on the tent. The sun was up, a phoebe bird said plaintively, "Poor Phoe-be."

I dressed and unleashed Susie. She stretched and trotted at once to something on the floor by the canvas edge of the tent. She would have eaten it had I not caught her quickly.

It was a slice of rather fresh raw meat, folded over, envelope fashion. A white powder filled the center. My first thought was of strychnine.

Yet, how absurd. Who would poison Susie or be so silly as to place poison in plain sight?

All of my anxiety of last night returned to me. The finding of the meat in my tent made me realize that, though the shot may have been intended for the old man and the pine tree may have accidentally fallen across the road, surely the meat was intended for Susie.

My anger was aroused and I was furious to think that anyone could be so contemptible as to poison my dog.

Dressed at last, I hastily packed my belongings for departure, and, leading Sue, I stepped from my tent into the glory of the mountain day.

Rebellious and angry at the thought of leaving, I refused to let the surrounding beauty get at me as I tramped to the lodge. O, the trail I met Dupres. He touched his hat, civilly enough, yet I imagined that he stared at me oddly.

Dr. David Roberts was in the main room of the lodge. His smile of recognition was direct and friendly.

Susie was sniffing at the paper-wrapped meat in my top coat pocket.

On impulse, I walked directly to Dr. Roberts and held out the meat to him. "Do you know strychnine when you see it, Doctor?" I asked.

The room became as silent as stone. The other guests stood about awaiting the breakfast bell and utter silence followed my remark.

THE doctor looked at me and said slowly, "What do you mean?"

"This white-powdered meat was placed in my tent for Susie last night." Not realizing the theatrical ring to my next remark, I turned to Mr. and Mrs. James, who stood together near the office enclosure and I said, "I love my dog! Is she welcome here at Gold Lake? If not, she and I will leave this morning for Tahoe."

I have said that Mr. James was a ruddy-faced man. His face grew a dreadful purple-red. Whether he was angry or frightened, I could not tell.

"That can't be poison, Miss Curtis. There must be some explanation. I can't believe that it is poison but if you are right, maybe it was coyote bait."

"This is freshly-sliced meat," I said shortly. "It wasn't there when I went to bed last night. Besides, you know that coyotes aren't in high mountains at this time of year."

He made no answer. Mrs. James stared at me and then at her husband.

The World Today--

Taft-Ike Feud May Boil Over

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (P)—The scalding bitterness between the Taft and Eisenhower camps may boil over in their struggle to seal rival delegates at the Republican National Convention next month.

The contest now is focused on disputed delegates in Texas, Georgia, Louisiana, and Mississippi. Taft has offered to compromise on some disputed Southern delegates, although he hasn't said so. The Eisenhower people say no.

If the fight becomes too fierce, it may split the Republicans into such hostile camps that it will cost the party the election. It could happen, and did happen before in the Taft family.

The senator's father, President William Howard Taft, went through this experience 40 years ago in a rivalry with ex-President Theodore Roosevelt at the Republican National Convention in Chicago where this one will be held, too.

That struggle did more than just split the party into factions. It split the party. Roosevelt ran against Taft on an opposition ticket. The divided Republican vote let Democrat Woodrow Wilson win the election easily.

No one this year is suggesting an exact duplicate of 1912, with the loser in the Taft-Eisenhower fight creating a rival party to run anyway. Eisenhower said last week he'll support the candidate chosen by the convention.

When he was elected in 1904 Theodore Roosevelt said he wouldn't seek or accept another nomination. But he had no intention of losing his political grip altogether when the 1908 elections came around.

He handpicked Taft, his friend and associate, as his successor. And the Republican convention that year accepted Roosevelt's choice. Taft was elected. But not all of Roosevelt's followers liked Taft's four-year administration.

They told Roosevelt so when he came back from an African hunting trip before the 1912 elections. They persuaded him to try for the Republican nomination and another White House term. He did. He drummed up convention delegates in the 13 states which had presidential preference primaries. He swamped Taft. But most states had no primaries and there the Republican politicians had a word to say for Taft.

Historian Harold U. Faulkner, in his "American Politics and Social History," gives a picture of what followed.

"Administration (Taft) delegates, handpicked from the South, gave Taft a larger nucleus to start with. And the national committee and the committee on credentials saw to it that the disputes were decided in favor of the regular Republican machine.

"When Roosevelt saw that the convention was in the hands of his opponents, he issued a scorching blast and urged his followers to participate no longer in the voting."

Roosevelt's followers then nominated him as presidential candidate of their new progressive party. As he arrived for that party's convention, Roosevelt said he felt as good as a "bull moose," which became the party's symbol.

The result: The Republican party smashed wide open, with Roosevelt getting 88 electoral votes to only eight for Taft. Wilson won the Democratic ticket with 435 electoral votes.

The national committee and the credentials committee, just as 40 years ago, will be the key groups deciding what Taft or Eisenhower delegates this year can be seated and take part in the nominations.

And, as in 1912, the big fight will be over delegates from the South where the Eisenhower people claim the Taftites squeezed them out.

Truman Considers Ike Naive Politically; Ike Hits China

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON. — The White House has been following with great interest — to put it mildly — General Eisenhower's maiden efforts in the political arena.

The President, who conferred pleasantly with Eisenhower just two days before the Abilene speech, was not exactly prepared for the smack - in - the - jaw attack which his administration got from the man he had once urged to run on the democratic ticket. However, he gave no visible sign of being peeved.

In fact, on the morning after Ike's Abilene blast, the President got off a wisecrack indicating that "Mister" Eisenhower had quite a bit to learn yet about politics.

Talking to Eric Johnston, head of the Point Four Program for helping backward areas, Truman said that after he left the White House he wanted to associate himself actively with Johnston's work. He praised the way Johnston was getting American experts to help increase agriculture and improve production in Asia and Africa, then added:

"You know General Eisenhower thinks we can solve these problems with birth control. 'I told him,' continued the President, 'You make that speech in Boston, General, and the Democratic party will carry Massachusetts by 200,000 votes.'"

Old Comrades Watch Ike

In the Pentagon, some of Gen. Eisenhower's old comrades - at arms watched his Abilene speech and press conference with the keenest interest. They were interested not only because they favored him personally, but also because they are a bit worried over the idea of a military man getting mixed up in politics.

After the Abilene events were over and Ike had put himself on record for General MacArthur and criticized the loss of China, one friend recalled an incident in World War II when Gen. George Marshall, then Chief of Staff, summoned Eisenhower. Marshall personally had planned the North African campaign, but without telling Eisenhower what he had in mind, he called him in and showed him a map on which was charted the North African strategy.

"What do you think of it?" Marshall asked.

"It looks O.K. to me," replied the younger man.

"You'd better think so," shot back Marshall. "You're going to be in command."

That was the biggest break in Eisenhower's life. It put him on the road to being a national hero and the presidency.

MacArthur VS. Marshall

Yet, at Abilene, Ike's old comrades pointed out, Ike blasted U.S. China policy, knowing full well that Gen. Marshall, as Ambassador to China, had first set that policy; then later, as Secretary of State, he carried it out; and finally, as Secretary of Defense, he vigorously opposed the MacArthur policy of arming Chinese Nationalists, building up Formosa, and going all-out for Chiang Kai-Shek.

Old military friends of Ike's and Marshall's also recalled that the bitterest feeling exists between MacArthur and Ike's old benefactor Marshall; and that Marshall supported President Truman in firing MacArthur. Yet at Abilene, Eisenhower, his mind on politics, indicated that he would reappoint MacArthur - if elected president.

Military men, of course, don't understand politics. If so, his old friend in the Pentagon might have been more charitable.

But not being politicians, and being fond of their old chief, Gen. Marshall, they also recalled that the most vicious attack ever made on Gen. Marshall was a 60,000-word diatribe on the floor of the senate by McCarthy of Wisconsin.

Under the cloak of privilege, McCarthy called Marshall every name in the book, even accusing him of cowardice. Later, McCarthy collected enough money to have the speech privately printed in book form, and it's now being circulated throughout Wisconsin.

Yet, when Eisenhower was asked about the senator who so bitterly castigated his old friend, Ike refused to "engage in personalities."

What Lost China

Those who sat in on the strategy meetings of World War II know all too well what it was that chiefly lost us China.

In large part it was the natural tug-of-war between different theatre commanders for guns, men, and materiel when there weren't enough guns, men, or materiel. Eisenhower in the European theatre was burning up the wires to Washington for more men, more guns, more gasoline. Churchill was supporting him.

Simultaneously, MacArthur in the Pacific was burning up the wires for more ships, guns, men, while in the China-Burma-India theatre, Chiang Kai-Shek was pleading for more guns, men, munitions, with Gen. Stilwell supporting him.

It was the American failure to support Chiang adequately during this period which really began "the loss of China." The head of a nation cannot be in virtual exile too long without losing face and without making it extremely difficult to stage a comeback.

Actually it was Ike's good friend Winston Churchill who more than almost anyone set back our China policy. Churchill bucked like a steer whenever Gen. Marshall urged more support for Chiang and more supplies for the Burma road. Churchill wanted to concentrate on Eisenhower's campaign in Europe.

And it was George Marshall more than anyone else except Gen. Al Wedemeyer who urged more support for China. He was so vigorous that in the late summer of 1943, the astute Churchill urged

Did you ever have a stack of letters to answer and didn't want to answer them—you might feel like writing one but when it comes to a lot of them—it's a real ordeal? This problem kept coming up with one busy housewife. She would no sooner get the letters from her family answered until they would start coming in again. Not that she didn't like to hear from her relatives, but this business of writing so many letters was getting her down—then in addition to members of her own family, there were letters from her husband's relatives, too.

She wrote and she wrote until she just was dizzy from writing—then she told herself she was just being silly—there was no use writing so many letters with all containing just about the same thing—she would just buy herself some carbon paper and write three or four letters at a time. This she did and it worked like a charm. Everybody is just as pleased with the carbon copy as they were with the originals and now she has time to do her housework—H.L.

Roosevelt to appoint Marshall commander-in-chief of the Allied armies for the big cross-channel invasion. He knew that with Marshall absorbed in the European theatre he would forget his efforts to push the campaign in China.

Ha. Marshall encouraged that proposal, he, not Eisenhower, would have been the hero of Europe, and there would have been no speech at Abilene last week.

THE STORY OF OLD GLORY

So bitterly did New England Puritans object to the Union flag that in 1634 John Endicott, governor of Massachusetts, cut out part of the cross in Salem's flag. The British, charging the mutilation gave "great offence" to England, had Endicott debarred from public office for a year.

In 1666, Sir Edmund Andros, appointed governor of the New England colonies by King James II, designed the flag at right, using red stripes and a white background to set off the gold crown and monogram of the king. But the colonists found it unacceptable.

As a result, the so-called pine tree group of flags was born. Granddaddy of the flags, which actually depicted fir and spruce trees, was the New England flag designed in 1700 (at top). The flag at lower right was to lead to the strikingly symbolic rattlesnake flags to be described tomorrow.

Pentagon May Write Rules For Gen. Mac

WASHINGTON (AP)—The booming of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for keynote speaker at the Republican National Convention may compel nervous Pentagon lawyers to lay out political ground rules for the former Pacific commander.

The Army's legal experts are known to have been tip-toeing for some time around the question of whether MacArthur's activities have strayed beyond the bounds of military regulations that forbid officers on active duty to engage in political campaigning.

Up to now, all they worried about were MacArthur's speeches, statements and support for Sen. Robt. Taft of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination. But unless he resigned from the army ahead of time, acceptance by MacArthur of any bid to keynote the GOP convention would lead to even more fingernail biting. For the regulations specifically ban "activity at political conventions" and "the making of political speeches."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower freed himself for such activity by applying for retirement and getting it. Although it wasn't necessary, he also gave up his pay and allowances of $19,541 a year. MacArthur, by applying for retirement too, could make himself as free as Eisenhower to mix in politics. At present he is a salaried officer on active duty but without any command.

Even in retirement, some military lawyers say, it would be necessary for both Eisenhower and MacArthur to pull their punches at the Democrats. The uniform code of military justice, applying to active and retired officers, says in Article 88 that an officer who uses "contemptuous words" against the President, vice-president, cabinet, members of Congress, governors or state or territorial legislators "shall be punished as a court martial may direct."

Eisenhower has said he does not intend to deal in personalities. If he sticks to that, he evidently would not need to worry about Article 88. But the legal authorities think it might be difficult for MacArthur to avoid clashing with that article in a keynote address that is supposed to whale away at the Democrats and glorify the Republicans.

Resignation from the Army would get either five-star general out from under the military code and permit political campaigning with no holds barred. Eisenhower has announced his intention to resign if he gets the Republican nomination. Some authorities believe it might be necessary for MacArthur to hand in his resignation in order to make the kind of speech that is expected of a convention keynoter.

Today's Political Round--

Ike Pitches for Dixie Vote; Still Feud Over MacArthur

By The Associated Press
While Gen. Dwight Eisenhower made a personal pitch today for Southern presidential - nominating votes, his backers were trying to beat off a move to name Gen. Douglas MacArthur as convention keynoter.

With the convention less than a month away—July 7 at Chicago—its arrangements committee was meeting at Chicago. A major task: selection of the man who will keynote the get-together with a traditional down - with-the-Democrats, up-with-the - Republicans speech. G. Mason Owlett, Pennsylvania national committeeman, told reporters he will nominate MacArthur for that role. Owlett, who has not said publicly how he stands in the Taft - Eisenhower duel, reportedly has rejected a protest from Eisenhower partisans that MacArthur should not be named because he favors Ohio's Sen. Robert Taft as Republican standard bearer.

Eisenhower forces clustered in hotel room conferences but apparently were unable to agree on any keynoter-nominee to oppose MacArthur.

In New York, Eisenhower continues his timetable conferences with GOP delegates. This afternoon he meets groups from Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina.

Donna Is Losing Cancer Battle; Birthday Early

CHANCE, Md. (AP)—The dark, blue eyes of pretty little Donna Daft don't sparkle quite as much as they used to, and her weight has dropped to 45 pounds.

She has had to put away the new bicycle that came along with a lot of other wonderful presents last Christmas after newspapers throughout the country told her story.

It's hard for her to keep her balance—even when walking. The doctors say these are symptoms of the last stages of cancer, so her parents have decided that the family had better celebrate Donna's ninth birthday a little early.

Actually, she won't be nine until June 19, but a big party has been planned for the 12th.

At that, Donna has outlived the Christmas diagnosis of "six months—maybe."

But a brain specialist in Baltimore told Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Daft last week—"this is the beginning of the end."

This has to be the best party any little girl ever had, her parents have vowed.

So they've invited every youngster of Donna's age in the whole town of chance—nearly 50 of them.

Taft Wants GOP Platform to Be 1950 Statement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft said today that Republicans could avoid a possible fight over their campaign platform this year by adopting at the Chicago convention a 1950 "statement of principles and objectives."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Taft's chief rival for the Republican presidential nomination, gave general endorsement to the document at his Abilene, Kan., news conference last Thursday.

Obviously referring to that, Taft told a reporter that Republicans can avoid a convention battle because "that can be our platform now."

The 1950 document was drawn up by Republican leaders in the Senate and House, including Taft, formally approved by a majority of GOP congressmen, and then endorsed by the Republican National Committee.

At the time some GOP senators, classed as liberals or progressives, registered some dissents. They included several who now are backing Eisenhower for the party's nomination.

One of them, Sen. H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, said in a separate interview today that the statements of Taft and Eisenhower indicate "that Republicans will present a united front once the nominee is selected."

"There has been some loose talk about a pre-convention contest between the two camps," he said. "But I think this demonstrates that whether Eisenhower or Taft is the nominee, the party can and will be unified in the campaign."

The 1950 campaign document put the party on record as wanting "to win lasting peace, to build a country in which every citizen may make the most of his skill, initiative and enterprise, to hold aloft the inspiring torch of American freedom, opportunity and justice, assuring better and happier life for all our people."

Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, also out for the Democratic prize, who heads his state's 70-vote GOP delegation, was also interviewed at Harrisburg yesterday. He repeated that he wants the group—scheduled to meet Friday with Eisenhower and later with Taft—to keep clear of any alliances before the convention.

The Associated Press tabulation of nationwide delegate strength, based on known and conceded preferences, now gives:

Republican—Taft 462, Eisenhower 390. Nomination needs 604.

Democrat—Kefauver 246, Russell 86 1/2, W. Averell Harriman 85 1/2. It takes 616 to be nominated.

Dodgers Must Be Careful About Leading

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the Brooklyn Dodgers are not careful, they may find themselves 13½ games in front of the New York Giants on Aug. 11.

And is there anybody who doesn't know what happened to the poor Brooks after that date last year? Even so, manager Charlie Dressen of the dauntless Dodgers is willing to gamble with such a long lead. He agrees that the Giants' unprecedented 1951 rush to the top in a playoff victory over the Brooks was nothing short of a miracle. And miracles just don't happen twice in a row this modern day and age.

Currently the Dodgers are playing a better brand of baseball than they did at a corresponding time a year ago. They're playing a remarkable 761 ball with 35 victories in 46 games. They've dropped just one of their 10 games on this second western swing. They lead the second place Giants by five games. On May 26, after losing three straight to New York, the Dodgers trailed the Giants by two gained seven and a half games on their chief rivals in two weeks.

Last night's 6-2 triumph over the Cardinals in St. Louis ran Brooklyn's latest winning streak to eight in a row although only one Brooklyn pitcher—Ben Wade—was able to go the distance. On the other hand, none of the starting pitchers has been able to go the route against the Dodgers during that stretch.

Boston's Red Sox also solidified their first place hold, opening up a one-game margin over the second place New York Yankees by vanquishing the Detroit Tigers, 9-3. The third place Cleveland Indians, who like the Yankees, were idle, are a half-game behind. The Indians are the poorest off in the percentage table because they have lost more games than the Red Sox and Yankees.

The Red Sox watched the Tigers twice go into the lead on home runs by former Boston sluggers Don Lenhardt and Walter Dropp, but bounced back each time. The winning run came in the sixth when Johnny Pesky, Red Sox shortstop, committed an error to allow Dom DiMaggio to cross the plate. DiMaggio had opened with a single, advanced to second on a sacrifice and raced all the way home when Pesky let George Kell's grounder go through for a two-base error. Kell was the key man in the nine-man swing between the two clubs last week.

Lenhardt and Dropp batted in all but one of the Tigers' runs. In the only other game in the majors, Boston's Braves nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2. Rookie Ben Thorpe drove in two Boston runs with a single to back up Jim Wilson's five-hit pitching. Rookie outfielder Bobby Del Greco hit the first big league homer for the Pirates but it was not enough to save Bob Friend from his seventh defeat.

The Dodgers had to come from behind to win. Cloyd Boyer blanked them for six innings but the Brooks tied the score at 2-2 in the seventh when Peeewe Reese singled with the bases loaded. Reliever Alpha Brazil doused the fire but got burned the eighth when Roy Campanella and Carl Furillo slammed two-run homers. National League lineups for the big game in Philadelphia July 8.

The scheduled night game between Chicago and the Senators in Washington was rained out.

Veeck Fires Hornsby, Makes Marion Manager

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Rogers Hornsby was fired today as manager of the St. Louis Browns by Owner Bill Veeck and Marty Marion was named to replace him.

Veeck, in making the announcement through the Browns' front office here, said he was relieving Hornsby for the good of the club.

Hornsby had a 3-year contract with the Browns but Veeck made a settlement with him, the terms of which were not announced.

Hornsby took over the Browns this season after managing the Seattle club to a Pacific Coast League championship last year.

Veeck, who flew east last night because he was tired of "worrying about the ball club by remote control," took the action in Boston.

There had been persistent reports Hornsby and Veeck were not seeing eye to eye.

Veeck said today he thought he had picked the right man but he obviously had been wrong and was admitting his mistake. He singled out no particular instance which led him to make the move.

Marion, who was dropped as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals after his first year at the helm, will take over the generalship of the Browns in tonight's game with Boston.

Rotary Climbs Out of Cellar, Beating Jaycees

Standings—	W.	L.
Elks	2	1
Kiwanis	2	1
Jaycees	1	2
Rotary	1	2

Kiwanis, knocking down the previously undefeated Elks, 14-13, moved into a tie with the Elks for the lead of the Majors of the Little League in the first of two games played Monday night at Housel Park.

Rotary, in the second game, climbed out of the cellar by trouncing the Jaycees 11 to 6 in an eight inning affair, longest of the league this season.

The Kiwanis edged the Elks in a wild and woolly contest. Sutton hit a homer with two men on for the Elks, but it wasn't enough. O'Mealy blasted out a double, triple and a home run for the Jaycees, but it was not enough to put his team on top.

The Jaycees made the play of the night as they pulled off the first triple play of the Little League season, when Homan, Rotary second baseman, lined a smash at Hickman, Jaycees second sacker, who flipped to shortstop who threw first to complete a lightning-fast triple kill.

Sauer Most Feared Batter In Baseball

NEW YORK (AP)—Hank Sauer today is the most feared batter in baseball.

Every club in the National league has felt the sting of Sauer's big home run bat. Playing the role of "Cinderella man," the Chicago Cubs' massive outfielder is leading in batting (.347), hits (.66) and runs batted in (.54), as well as in home runs (.44).

It's an old story, this current success of Hank Sauer. A good minor league hitter, he failed in several attempts with Cincinnati. He could hit the long ball but wasn't much in the batting averages.

In 1949 the Reds finally traded him to Chicago, where he continued to pound the ball for distance but never once came close to the .300 mark—the accepted gauge of good hitters.

This year, however, for some reason, he's been hitting the long ball and the "short" ball—meaning lots of singles. And it's boosted his average some 77 points over his lifetime mark of .270. He's reminding Cub fans of their immortal slugger, Hack Wilson.

Sauer, who normally hits best at the end of the season, holds an eight-point lead over New York's Whitey Lockman (.339) in the batting derby. Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson (.338) is a point behind Lockman, in third place, while Stan Musial, St. Louis, .330, and Frank Baumholtz, Chicago, .321, round out the top five.

Giants Just Had to Slump After Losing Willie Mays

NEW YORK (AP)—It would, as a matter of fact, have been plain remarkable and against all the laws of probability if the New York Giants had not gone into at least a temporary decline after losing Willie Mays to the Army. The National League champions will be lucky if it proves only temporary.

Some things about baseball are difficult to explain, and the tremendous role this joyous Negro boy with the high-pitched voice played in the day-by-day fortunes of the Giants is one of them. It transcended by a great deal the importance of his batting and fielding, good as they were.

Almost from the day he stepped into the lineup just over a year ago, fresh from Minneapolis, Willie became a sort of symbol to Leo Durocher's team. Here was a kid so gifted that no one could even guess at the heights he might scale, and yet so completely guileless and unaffected and plain filled with the wonder of playing big league ball that he scarcely seemed real.

The Giants adopted Willie, and Willie adopted the Giants. The Alabama kid became a sort of mascot, a winning symbol. The veterans of the club laughed when he ran out from under his cap on the bases and ribbed him like a bumpkin in the locker room, but when Willie wasn't around they told you he was making catches out in center field and throws to the plate probably never excelled, if matched, in the history of the game.

Willie's infectious spirit and the circus support he gave giants pitchers were more important than the books will ever show in the club's sensational drive to the flag last year. His batting fell off badly toward the end, but there likely would have been a team insurrection if Durocher had benched him. In the final tense days Willie mourned to one of his heroes, Eddie Stanky. "I ought to be hittin' more," and Ed told him, "Willie, you just do the catching and we'll do the hitting."

The past spring at Phoenix the Giants were a careless, confident team, and the "holer kid" was the star of their training sessions. The crowds and the other players watched delightedly as Durocher worked him unmercifully and conspired to beat Willie out of his turns in the batting cage. But Willie loved it.

Possibly none of this explains entirely why the Giants figured to suffer an emotional reaction when Willie left. It might be difficult to understand how the loss of one player can drastically affect the fortunes of a club so solidly equipped with stars as the Giants.

All anyone knows is that the Giants haven't looked like pennant winners since Willie went away.

The Elks and the Kiwanis teams of the Little League will hold a practice at the Smith-Cotton High School athletic field Wednesday at 5:30 p. m. All players on both teams are asked to be present.

Red Birds Peck Out Two Beatings For T&C Squad

Although unreported locally, the Town and Country baseball team—the sports department of The Democrat learns—has been getting pushed deep into the outfield in its last few games.

Take Sunday, for instance, when the Town and Country nine was trampled on by the Red Birds of Jefferson City 24 to 2. Monday night the same Red Birds hardly ruffled their feathers again as they pecked the T&C outfit to the tune of 8 to 1 lone 1.

Queen and Son Hide From King, Ailing Mentally

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Queen Zeine of Jordan and her son, 17-year-old Crown Prince Hussein, were reported today in hiding somewhere in Switzerland from her husband, mentally ailing King Talal.

A senior Lausanne police official said the Queen left her hotel in haste Friday, just a day before her husband arrived from Paris. "We know where she has gone," the official added, "but it would be against Switzerland's national interest to say any more."

A friend of the royal family said the Queen was "terribly afraid" her husband would find her. She and her son were reported living under heavy police guard.

King Talal, the son of the assassinated King Abdullah, has been under treatment for a nervous disorder at a clinic on Lake Geneva.

The monarch is in a hotel here, waiting news of his wife and son. The Jordan government a week ago appointed a regency council to take over the royal functions while the 41-year-old Talal is unfit to perform his duties.

LONDON (AP) — A Stratocruiser carrying 108 passengers — 65 children of British war brides, 42 of the brides themselves and one lone father — landed here from New York last night.

The children, who ranged from three months to 10 years of age, and their mothers will visit relatives here.

The male passenger was Frank Braun, 35, of Philadelphia, Pa., who brought his wife and their two children to see Mrs. Braun's parents just outside London.

It's a Fish Story And He Says True

MILTON, Pa. (AP) — Troy Musser, long-time Milton barber and sportsman, claims this fish story is the honest-to-gosh truth: Musser was trying his luck over the weekend in a nearby Northumberland County creek when a

ON A BIKE TOUR—John Marshall and his wife, Ida, both school teachers at Marshall, Mo., are shown here with their bikes at Springfield, Mo., before they started their tour of Civil War battlefields and Indian stamping grounds between Springfield and New Orleans via Mobile and Little Rock. ## Britain, 'Youngest' Tourist Country, Eyes Record Year

LONDON (AP)—Britain, probably the world's "youngest" tourist country, is looking forward to a record breaking summer season bringing 200,000 American visitors to see the sights.

It took an acute dollar shortage to convert Britain into a land conscious that it has plenty to attract foreign tourists.

Before World War II foreign visitors to these shores were tolerantly viewed as an eccentric lot. Americans were cigar-smoking millionaires wearing Harold Lloyd glasses and sunburst ties.

The war time GI invasion changed that picture and the stress and strain of Britain's postwar economy has changed it a lot more. Now there is a widespread understanding that Americans may be ranked as human beings—not all rich ones—plus a feeling it is a patriotic duty to make a visitor's stay in this country as pleasant as possible.

The government-sponsored Tourist Association is confident that last year's record 700,000 foreign visitors will be topped 50,000. Part of this increase will stem from air fares. Figures for the first four months of this year show an increase in U. S. tourists of 9 per cent over last year.

Once the Americans get here, the British want them to widen the scope of their travels.

An American as often as not will speedily take in London's obvious sights—Buckingham Palace, the Tower of London, the houses of Parliament and so on. Then he will head for the Shakespeare

Prison Convict Ends His Stay On High Grid

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A Statesville prison convict ended an all-day perch on a girder 60 feet above the prison's mess hall yesterday after the prison chaplain convinced him he should come down.

Marshall Parille, 25, shinnied up a steam pipe while prisoners were eating breakfast. He reached a girder directly under the mess hall's glass roof and began taunting guards. For more than nine hours he ignored guards' orders to come down but finally obeyed the request of the chaplain, Rev. Jervase Brinkman, and slid down the steam pipe.

Warden Joseph E. Ragen said Parille told him he was angry about a decision in Sunday's Chicago White Sox-Washington Senators baseball game in Washington. Ragen said Parille was seeking publicity.

Parille, of Chicago, is serving 15 years to life for armed robbery.

gust of wind lifted his hat off his head and carried it to the other side of the creek. Minutes later he spied the hat moving downstream at a rapid, zig-zagging pace.

Investigating, he found a 10-inch trout hooked into one of the flies stuck in the battered fedora. It was his only catch of the day.

Pace Believes UN Can Stave Off Reds, Win

WASHINGTON (P)—Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr. thoroughly disagreed with Maj. Gen. Daniel H. Hudson that United Nations forces in Korea lack the manpower to face the Communist hordes and win the war.

"Any opinion to the effect that United Nations forces in Korea would be defeated if the Communists should attack," Pace declared, "is contrary to everything that our highest military leaders in the field—the men who know most about the situation—have to report.

For my part, I'll put my trust in the ability of the armed forces of our nation and those of our Allies to meet any challenge which the Communists may make," Pace said in a statement.

The secretary was commenting on an interview in Los Angeles by Hudson, a reserve officer who is returning to civilian life after 21 months active duty, including service as commander of the 40th Division in Korea.

Hudson, who said in his original interview, "I'm not sure why we're even fighting," told reporters later: "Secretary Pace is a fine gentleman, and as secretary undoubtedly has access to information not available to a poor old broken-down commander just back from Korea. I was speaking only from personal experience."

An oil company executive until his recall to duty, Hudson said he expects to be out of the Army within two or three days.

Sixth Army headquarters in San Francisco was asked to investigate the circumstances of Hudson's statement and to provide full details of what he said.

Uncover Link Between Reds In US and PI

SAN FRANCISCO (P)—Philippine and American authorities have uncovered a secret communication link between Communists in the United States and Communist Huk fighting in the Philippines, Philippines National Defense Secretary Ramon Magasaysay said today.

Coded messages smuggled into the Philippines through air lines serving Manila and San Francisco were intercepted, he said. The messages supplied evidence of a close tieup between the Reds, he asserted. Other intercepts have been found aboard airplanes from Hong Kong and Europe to Manila.

Means of breaking the communications line with the cooperation of air line officials are under close study, he said in an interview.

The husky 45-year-old defense secretary heads east today aboard a Military Air Transport Service plane for Washington. He will meet President Truman at the White House, and several top military leaders and civilians in a busy five-day visit.

He will stop enroute at El Paso, Texas, for a reunion with a World War II guerrilla comrade-in-arms, Col. Gyles Merrill.

Magasaysay for two years has led a winning battle against the will-o'-wisp Huk guerrillas.

He revamped the Philippine Army into small, fast and hard-hitting combat teams. They have kept the Huk off balance and disrupted Red communications.

Automotive Hint

Before attempting to adjust the wheel bearings, it is a good plan to have on hand an extra cotter pin of the type which locks the nut that holds the bearings. These pins often are broken in the process of removal.

Politicians Trouble Today Is They Don't Look the Part

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (P)—The trouble with politicians today isn't that they all sound alike. It's that they all dress alike.

The average politician looks so much like any ordinary man you can't even tell he is running for office until he opens his mouth. Then it's too late.

Politicians need something to set them apart. Nothing sets a man apart like a uniform. So why not uniforms for politicians? Since everybody loves a uniform, why not also create one for bureaucrats, too? It would pep them up. Bureaucrats are getting the idea nobody really loves them anymore. Many people in government life now wear uniforms — such as policemen, firemen, members of the armed forces, garbage collectors and diplomats readily identified by their Homburg hats and striped pants. But if every public servant wore a uniform and you could see at a glance what he was, you would also be impressed at how many of them there are.

Naturally you would have to have different uniforms to distinguish those elected to office and those appointed to their jobs.

All bureaucrats, for example, might be outfitted in neat white hairshirts and serviceable blue serge suits lined in the seat with a good grade of saddle leather. You could tell their rank by the chevrons on their sleeves, just as you now can tell a corporal from a sergeant. To build pride of service each bureaucrat might be permitted to wear a stripe on his cuff for every three years he had been in his post.

Then you could look at his chevrons, count his stripes — and figure his salary.

To stamp him even clearer, each bureaucrat might wear a metal lapel emblem denoting his branch of government. For example, a miniature ear of corn for the Department of Agriculture, a pine tree for the National Park Service, a pair of pliers for the Labor Department, a gift dollar sign for the Bureau of Internal Revenue.
